Q11 What aspects of the training could be improved?

Heavy lifting

More on job type lifting., little more time for Q&A, smaller group.

Whole day presentation required. Pressed for time for 1/2 day.

Merger of thinking; training new workers.

Training new workers.

Training new workers.

Merger of thinking, training new workers.

More participants/owner involved.

More people involved.

Lifting

A practical approach taught in school.

We talked about ergonomics but I am not sure everyone still knows what that means.

It was good, maybe more examples of different things.

Met expectations

It was very well presented. Group interaction kept me more alert.

It was great.

Learned a lot.

None

None

Everything was good.

It's well done.

Job well done! P.S too long!!

Get the workers to discuss past injuries so younger or new workers know the importance of everything discussed in the training.

None

Translator is needed.

Nothing overall. Good performance.

None. Well covered.

Nothing at all everything was clear.

Nothing, all of the info was clear and presented properly.

None it was great.

It was a good presentation.

The instructor.

Nothing

If the instructors had more real world training on a job site they could cater more towards the particular trade they are working with.

None of the solutions to avoiding repetitive work could be applied to our daily routine.

Was all good.

Understanding that we work in uncontrollable environments and that we can't always do exactly as they explained so alternate methods might be needed.

Very good.

Nothing

Was good overall. I liked the stretches that could be applied to our day.

Focus more on real issues as opposed to the ones that are not a problem.

Not a lot. The meetings (phone & in person) prior to the presentation covered questions before hand making the presentation focussed.

More on site specific lifts.
